> The bars were let down in the street car merger hearing yesterday when the representatives of the Federation of Citizens' Associations might cross-exmine at will, on almost any topic the witnesses placed on the stand by the car empanies. At once the hearing began to wander off into a maze of figures. Questions flew on what the mission called, in its ruling, matters of fact, but many of which seemed to nontechnical observers to have eared their flight from realms of fancy Hard-headed traction operators had to call for repetition of abstruse inquiries. Roberts, vice chairman of the federation's public utilities committee who is a valuation lawyer, leaped at the gap opened by the commission and at one fell swoop ripped $14,500,000 from the $62,500,000 claimed by the companies as a proper rate base value of their properties. Or at least he said he had done so. When arguments occur at the end of the hearing company awyers promise to get the $14,500,000

Douthitt Asks Hearing

In announcing late yesterday that Douthitt would appear before the subcommittee this morning, Representative Gibson (Republican) of Vermont, explained that Douthit had asked for an opportunity to describe conditions here with regard to prohibition enforcement. Douthitt, who, at one time, was a paid informer for the prohibition unit, is now employed as a "field agent" for the Citizens Service Association for Law and Order, an organization composes of volunteer prohibition agents. Douthitt's present job is to spy out bootleg "joints" and cooperate with the police in closing them up. The head of the service association, the Rev. Dr. W. S. Abernethy, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, has said that he still has faith in Maj, Hesse despite the charges of drinking that have been made against him.

Senator Caraway, dry Democrat, of Arkansas, interrupted Bruce.

"I do not care what the police reports may be," said Caraway. "It seems to me that the chief of police has been getting a good deal of liquor himself if I should believe the reports emenating from the other end of the Capitol."

Mr. McQuade, foreman of the grand jury, called upon Chief Justice Waiter I. McCoy of the District Supreme Court yesterday in connection with the charges made by the police before the Gibson subcommittee. The foreman was closeted with the Chief Justice for a few minutes, but nothing that either of them aid was made public.

The reason this city's garbage is so rich, Dr. Howe said, is because of the "high living" here and the small foreign element. Foreigners, he explained, conserve more than Americans.

Dr. Howe, who represented the Cathedral Heights Citizens Association, mentioned this in pleading for modernization of the city's garbage disposal plant at Cherry Hill, Va. The action followed a report by Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers, who pictured present health conditions in the schools as "beyond belief." Of 61.778 children enrolled, only 16.483 received medical examination last year, she said. Of these, 92.8 per cent were found to have physical defects, most of which could have been remedied, she held.

Foreign Minister Briand of France, asked Gen. Tanczos for the "birth certificate" of the arms consignment in order that their place of origin might be determined. The French representative also wanted to know why Hungary had smashed up the material and sold it: at auction in the face of a prospective investigation.

Baldwin Called 'Daddy' By Girl Suffrage Seekers

London, March 7 (A.P.).—A historic precedent will be established tomorrow in England when the women equal suffrage forces hold a huge united franchise demonstration in Queen's Hall and Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister, deliv ers an address. It will be the first time that a prime minister while in office has addressed a meeting of women agitators for equal voting

The young suffragists, elated in anticipation of what appears to be success in their battle for enfranchisement, have conferred upon their powerful champion the expressive title of "Daddy." They will dress in picturesque costumes to greet "Daddy" Baldwin, and re-cruits from 150 suffrage organizations will march around the hall singing songs of victory.

The advocacy of the premier and the cordial approval of the Labor party chief, Ramsay MacDonald, and his followers in parliament, appears to make certain realization of "votes for flappers," and women under 30, who then will be placed on an equal footing with male voters, feel that celebration need not be further postponed.

RAILROADS BLAMED BY LEWIS FOR COAL MINERS' TROUBLES

Union President Files Allegations of Conspiring at Senate Hearing.

URGES CONGRESS ACT

Would Amend Interstate Commerce Law to Prevent Depressing Wages.

(Associated Press.)
Depicting deplorable economic conditions in the central competitive bituminous tields, John L. Lewis, president nous tields, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, sesterday laid the situation primarily to what he termed a conspiracy among the railroads.

This conspiracy has a two-fold purpose, to reduce coal costs to the carriers and to keep down the level of wages for miners and railroad men, Lewis charged, as he presented the opening statement for the unemployed union miners, in the Senate investigation ordered under the Johnson resolution.

tion ordered under the Johnson resolution.

While making this the primary foundation for his complaint, Lewis you cetailed many other factors entering into the whole equation of the ills that beset operators and union and non-union miners alike. He protested vigorously against the use of iron and coal and other private police clothed with the sovereign powers of the State and against the operation of injunctions issued by the Federal courts to restrain the union men.

Accuses Two Companies.

Abrogation of the Jacksonville wage agreement before its expiration also was dweit upon at length, and Lewis called attention that among the first two companies to break the wage contract were the Consolidation Coal Co. of West Virginis and the Pittsburgh Coal Co. of Pennsylvania.

He asserted that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is a controlling factor in the former, while the latter is generally recognized in financial circles as a Melion concern.

In connection with this action by the two companies, Lewis disclosed through correspondence that after the wage agreement had been broken he asked President Coolidge whether the Federal Government, which had been instrumental in bringing about the Jacksonville conference intended to interfere, and he received a negative reply. This was in November and December, 1925.

The President wrote that the Government was not a party to the contract and consequently had no status in enforcement. He suggested that the unions take the matter into the courts, adding that if no enforcement loud be found there "the law-making powers should enact the legislative measures necessary to enable the courts to give such relief in the future."

On the stand before the Interstate Commerce committee all day, Lewis read into the record a 50-page statement of conditions and wound up with suggestions for remedies. Chief among these was the curbing of the power of Federal courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes, and an amendment of the interstate commerce act "so as to prevent the railroads from practicing methods designed to exploit the bituminous industry, further depress wages and destroy the miners' union."

Other suggestions were that consolidations of mining units be permitted so that the industry might be operated more economically by providing better machinery and through other improvements. Lewis called attention to the appalling loss of life in American mines and laid much of it to faulty equipment.

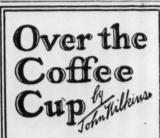

Condition Breeds Reds, Claim. Taking up injunctive processes, Lewis surprised the committee with a state-ment that there are communities in West Virginia and other States where

"Surely this is an invasion of rights that are the common inheritance of the American citizens," he declared.

"These communities that have thus nullified 'constitutional guarantees should be kept under constant observation by Federal agents, and we ask that a law to that effect be enacted."

Declaring that the system of armed and uniformed private police operating in the bituminous districts promoted disturbance, and not peace, Lewis declared this stuation "has its spawn in syndicalism, communism and other movements with which the Government deals summarily and effectively."

Accusing W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with initiating the conspiracy against the mines and union miners, Lewis explained that the carriers could control prices of coal through their enormous purchases.

"They play one field against another, for they can change from one to the other instantly," Lewis said. "An operator, will contract to auphly coal to a other instantly." Lewis said. "An op-erator will contract to supply coal to a railroad at less than- the production cost because he loses less money than he would if he did not have the con-tract."

Ham introduced a statement of the persons holding I per cent or more each of the capital stock of his company There were five or these, the North American Co., with 48,550 shares; Crane, Parris & Co., with 13,802 shares; Arthur W. It appeared from Hanna's answers, among other things, that the cars operated by his company include 98 that have been in service for more than the 19 years held to be the life of a car, and which had not been written out of the valuation. These included one aged car that has been used to haul passengers continuously since 1899.

Hanna was defending the multiplication of 1914 costs by two to coincide with present prices, and he said:

and Mrs. Singleton's tasting experience

IN making cup cakes be sure that your shortening is so pure and sweet that it will not detract from the delicate flavor of the cakes themselves. But, how to tell? Simply taste your shortening. Mrs. Singleton did this, and wrote us:

"I have used Crisco for years, but never thought of tasting it before. So I closed my eyes and tasted first some of my butter, then Crisco.

"I was amazed at the delicious sweetness and freshness of Crisco. It seemed so much like sweet, unsalted butter.'

MAKING FOR CHAOS.

The prime object of the proposed constitutional amendment under discussion in the House is to bring about the meeting of a new Congress soon after election. The excuse put forth for the attempted tinkering with the Constitution is that the country demands immediate action after a general election, and objects to the present system whereby 'lame ducks" remain in Congress from election day until March 4.

There is no general demand on the part of the people, such as is alleged. On the contrary, the public is "fed up" with Constitution-tinkering, after the two unfortunate experiences in which prohibition was made the fundamental law and provision made for electing senaters by popular vote. The deterioration of the Senate under the new rule is universally perceived. The instability of the Senate warns the people against acceptance of proposals which it approves as the instance of such solons as Norris, of Nebraska.

The fact is that the percentage of "lame ducks" in each Congress is very small. The political turnover of the House averages only 12 per cent.

The advantage of having the last session of a Congress extend from December to March in an inauguration year is that Congress is organized and can infallibly meet in joint session and count the electoral vote and declare the result; and if the election is thrown into the House there is time to elect a President before March 4.

Under the pending resolution a new Congress would meet on January 4, and inauguration day would fall on January 24. The House would be required to organize by electing a Speaker before Congress could meet in joint session to count the electoral vote. On several occasions the House has been deadlocked over the election of a Speaker, postponing the organization of the House. In 1849 the House was deadlocked 19 days, electing Howell Cobb after 62 ballots; in 1855 the House was deadlocked, and not until February 2, 1856, after 137 ballots, was Nathaniel P. Banks elected Speaker; and in 1859-60 the House was deadlocked two months before it elected William Pennington as Speaker.

The deadlocks occurred because no political party commanded a majority in the House. With the growth of blocs, which was recently deprecated by Speaker Longworth as a danger to the stability of the Union, deadlocks in the House are more probable than ever. If the proposed constitutional amendment were adopted it is quite likely that after the first presidential election thereafter Congress would be unable to meet in joint session to count the electoral vote before inauguration day. The country would be without a President, for the resolution makes no provision for such a contingency. Twenty days is entirely too brief a period in which to provide for organization of the House, count the electoral vote, and elect a President in case the election is thrown into the House. The esolution as it stands works toward chaos in the Government.

A plane embodying "startling" improvements is nearing completion at Meudon, just outside the gates of Paris. Only meager details of its design have been divulged. It will be powered with three Hispano-Suiza motors similar to those used by Costes and Lebrix. The body of the plane is said to provide space for sleeping bunks and other conveniences. The plane is equipped with a system of stabilization that automatically comes into play when any of the three engines stops, so that if engine trouble develops during the transatlantic flight the plane will maintain an even balance while repairs are being made.

MR. ESCH'S CASE.

It remains for the full Senate to decide whether it will be bound in considering the reappointment of John J. Esch, of Wisconsin, to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the sectional and political issues which obscure the main point and threaten to rob the rate regulatory body of its usefulness. The Senate, as the representative of all the people, can and should disregard the sectional dispute which influenced the interstate commerce committee of the Senate in its unfavorable report on the confirmation of Mr. Esch.

The public would judge from the outcry that has been raised with respect to the decision of the commission in the lake cargo case that it involved some new question and a startling departure from accepted principle. This is far from being the case. The centro-Southeast and those serving the central competitive field had its beginning almost twenty years ago. It has been before the Interstate Commerce Commission in various forms for more than ten years. /Locally, among the States directly affected, it is a matter of some importance. Nationally it is not of paramount importance. Moreover, the case in all its aspects has been determined by the same general principle that has guided the commission in other similar controversies, namely, the relativity of just and reasonable rates in this instance to just and reasonable rates in other

The Interstate Commerce Commission, generally, and Mr. Esch, particularly, followed this principle in 1925, when a nonprejudicial relationship was prescribed for the rates on coal from Alabama mines and those of western Kentucky and southern Illinois, In essence this case involved the issues and principles present in the lake cargo case. It was decided along the lines laid down by the commission in the case for which Mr. Esch is now being attacked. There was not then, nor has there been since, any such outburst as that in which the Senate is now engaged.

Political considerations have had far too much to do with the attitude of the Senate, both with regard to the lake cargo case and the Interstate Commerce Commission. Sena tor Reed, of Pennsylvania, sowed the seed for such a conflict when he openly and publicly made a political and sectional issue of Interstate Commerce Commission patronage. His demand that Pennsylvania be represented upon that body aroused intense antagonism. Sectionalism and politics now threaten to wreck a semi-judicial body which should at all cost be kept free of partisan spirit. Ability and integrity, not politics, should be the controlling factor in appointments to the commission, but unless the Senate as a whole takes control of the present situation the reverse is likely to be true. Mr. Esch should be confirmed.

SMOKY MOUNTAINS PARK.

The gift of $5,000,000 from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Fund makes certain that the Great Smoky Mountains National Park will soon become a national asset. The amount, given as a memorial to Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, sr., will complete the $10,000,-000 needed to purchase and turn the 700,000,acre tract over to the Federal Government. Within a few years a pleasure ground and beauty spot within easy reach of three-fourths of the population will be thrown open.

Although much of Great Smoky Mountains National Park is virgin forest land, it lies in a gion already famous. It is a part of the Land of the Skies, which has been so successfully capitalized by North Carolina. Even before that section of the country became popular as a resort and vacation ground. it was selected by some of the Nation's earliest country. The salubrious climate, the abunsettlers as a place for their homes in the new dance of game and the accessibility of water and fuel compensated the pioneers for the fact that they were forced to cling to the sides of the hills for their dwellings. Some of the purest American stock still lives in the mountain territory.

The boundaries of Great Smoky Mountains National Park will cover portions of Tennessee as well as North Carolina. It should, and no doubt will, attract residents of the entire Eastern section. Its appeal may not be quite as varied as Yellowstone, but should prove fully as attractive to those unable to make the longer journey West. Linked with the Shenandoah National Park, the Great Smoky Mountains. reservation will form an outlet almost at the gates of the National Capital for those who find pleasure and recreation in visiting nature

PLATO, FEMINIST.

The power of newly discovered manuscripts to let in light on the dark places of antiquity is truly remarkable. Here is a lost bock of Plato's, discovered in the Vatican library last summer by an American professor and confidently heralded to the world as containing proof that, away back in 300 B. C., or thereabouts, Plato, the great Greek philosopher, went on record as being in favor of votes for wemen. This view of the Athenian is so much at variance with other opinions regarding women, which he is known to have expressed in other works of his, that one is tempted to examine into the question of the manuscript itself a little more closely.

This mysterious document, which has lain unrecorded for centuries on a shelf in the Vatican library, while scholars searched for it in vain, was apparently removed to France with other spoils by Napoleon, and then formed part of the reparations made to Rome on the conclusion of the Napoleonic War. Through the most criminal negligence, however, it was not listed, when it was restored, as a Plato manuscript, and so was soon lost. Librarians, of course, are like that. This particular manuscript has been identifully fly from Europe to the United States, a fied (by its finder) as the work of a famous scribe who, about 1,000 years ago, copied ancient masterpieces for Bishop Arethas, of Pa This scribe always dated his works on the last page, but there is no date on the manuscript now under examination, because the last few pages are missing. This is unfortunate; but it was found, by comparing the writing and general make-up of the manuscript with a manuscript dated in 914 by this same scribe, that it is his work.

There may, it is evident, be some doubt both as to who was the copyist and as to who was the original author. If the work is a genuine Plato, and if it is established that that philosopher held, as we are told, that "for political purposes there is no more reason for classing women apart than for refusing to give the privileges of citizenship to bald-headed men, it would be no more than proper for some one to send word to Sir Philip Sidney to recall the bawling out which, in his "Defence of Poesie," he gave to Plato for his attitude toward women.

In any case, one is forced to the conclusion that great is the art of paleography.

BLOCK BOOKING.

The Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has served notice on the Federal Trade Commission that it will not comply with the order directing it to cease the block booking of motion pictures, upon the ground that the industry at its recent trade practice conference in New York failed to eliminate the practice and because no better method of distribution has yet been devised. The Trade Commission has indicated that it will resort to prompt court action to enforce the order. Nothing is to be gained through a long drawn-out legal battle between the commission and the moving picture industry. The controversy over block booking is one that should be ironed out by the industry itself. Certain aspects of it undoubtedly are pernicious. Possibly it does make for a simplified and economical distribution system, yet under it the exhibitor and the public suffer. The commission has declared block booking to be in restraint of trade. The industry, by revising the system at its trade practice conference, admits that there is something in the stand taken by the commission. Somewhere a middle ground is to be found upon which an economically sound and legal distribution system can

The moving picture industry is powerful and wealthy. It can carry along the contest in court interminably. The commission, of ourse, can not recede from its position, and in the meantime the moving picture industry will continue as it has in the past. Yet it is significant that the Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky decision not to comply with the commission's order came just after conclusion of a Senate' committee hearing on the Brookhart bill to make block booking illegal. Possibly the final chapter in the controversy will be written by Congress.

RECENT APPOINTMENTS.

Significant political inferences have been drawn this week from the fact that President Coolidge disregarded the preferences of the Republican organization in two Southern States in appointments to the Federal bench. Commentators have seen in the action of the Chief Executive "unmistakable evidence of his desire to dissassociate himself completely from poli-The appointments were those involving Gov. John E. Martineau of Arkansas, a Democrat, to the Eastern district of Arkansas, and Bascom Deaver, of Georgia, a Republican, to the middle district of Georgia.

Gov. Martineau has already been confirmed. There is no Senate opposition to the Georgia selection. In fact the charge is nowhere made that the President's selections are not thoroughly fitted for the high honor conferred upon them. President Coolidge and many of his predecessors have in other instances ignored partisan considerations in their appointments. This has been particularly true where the Federal judiciary has been con-

The only apparent reason for so much surmise and speculation is that this is the season of the Presidential campaign, and there are still those who search for means by which they may go behind the President's declaration that he is not a candidate. Federal appointments based on merit ought to occasion no surprise at any time. A Federal bench free of the accustomed workings of the patronage system is a thing to be desired. It might be so regarded and accepted in other years, but now it must be viewed through a political glass,

TEACHING TEMPERANCE.

The New York City Board of Education has ssued a general order to all school principals calling their attention to article 26, section 690, of the education law. The article, adopted about 25 years ago, largely at the insistence of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, provides that all children in public schools be instructed regularly regarding the effects of alcoholic drinks and tobacco. Complaint had been received from unofficial dry investigators that this subject is not taught with thoroughness in the New York schools. In a way the incident illustrates a partial return to common sense. When the prohibition movement was first started it contented itself largely with bringing about reform through educational methods. The cause of temperance was advanced materially as a re sult and the indications were that this method of causing reform would in time create an outstandingly temperate country. But fanaticism crept into the councils of the prohibition societies. It was not willing to await gradual betterment. "There ought to be a law" became its keynote and a law eventually was enacted. The subsequent story needs no retelling. The law has failed to accomplish what education was certain to accomplish.

Unquestionably, the nature and effect of alcohol and tobacco should be taught to school children, but such teachings today can not prove as effective as they were formerly Children learn most by example, and temperance will not be learned easily in communities that have become intemperate.

New regulations now being formulated for the licensing of all sightseeing guides in Washington are sorely needed. Those who visit their Capital should not be stuffed full of misinformation. Not many guides in the past have painted fanciful and inaccurate pictures. but in order to drive charlatans out of business careful regulation is necessary.

Freedom of the Air

Whether the present Radio Commission is without information or without desire to be just is a question that is very largely being decided in public opinion in favor of the later conclusion. It seems unthinkable that any men of reasonable intelligence actuated by a sense of justice could have so allotted the wave lengths as to give a nonopoly, or practically a monopoly, to one concern.

When Congress created the Radio Commission it had grave doubts as to what the commission would do. And when the members of the commission as now composed were nominated by the President it was nore apprehensive. The results justify these apprehensions.

As the commission has apportioned the privilege of broadcasting it has made it possible by hook-ups by one concern to destroy all other broadcasting stations throughout the country.

It is commercializing, of course, this privilege by turning the air into a bill board to advertise "soda," "ginger ale," cars, and every other junk, including "Smith Brothers Whiskers." It is needless to rail-like the advertisement of the Victrola, the commission "hears it has attained, are of unusual inits master's voice." Necessity and Industry

=By ROBERT QUILLEN= THERE is a common belief in America that "hick" districts produce the country's great men. There is some foundation for the belief, but the explanation isn't the one commonly given.

Rural atmosphere doesn't develop any better brains than metropolitan atmosphere-nor finer character. But rural youngsters of average ability go to town filled with ambition. The dull ones remain in the country. The result, in one Indiana school district, is that 27 per cent of the children of school age are mental defectives.

Tom, Dick and Harry leave the "sticks" because they are ashamed of being "rubes." Shame fills them with a determination to be somebody, and when they get to town they buckle down to work and pass city boys of equal ability.

Observe two boys in school, one brilliant and the other ordinary. People predict a great future for the brilliant boy, but usually they are wrong. The kid knows he is a wonder and is content to take things easy and rest on his laurels. The other boy, conscious of being a secondrater, is spurred to great industry and becomes a prominent citizen.

Why do Americans strive harder than the British? Because Americans begin at the bottom. Every man covets a place in the sun-honors, glory, the admiration of his fellows. The Britisher of the upper class is born to honors. His family name gives him high rank. But the American must win what he enjoys. Whoever he may be, he starts with nothing so far as the world's respect is concerned. He tries harder than the Britisher because he has more to try for.

The poet eating crusts in a garret writes masterpieces. When the world recognizes his genius, he grows fat and dull-witted. Genius sprouts in an empty stomach. Necessity is the mother of industry.

The poor man's son has a better chance than the rich man's son because his hatred of poverty serves as an inspiration. A man doesn't yearn to conquer the world if he inherits a generous section of it.

The saints are men who once were great sinners. The big jobs are held by men who had to fight for a chance to begin at the bottom. But the prohibitionists campaigners are not making any serious fight at this stage on any Democrat but Smith; and for this they have their own sufficient reason, to wit: that the factors in Smith's popularity and the likelihood of his election are unique.

Naturally the first battle line in the fight on Smith will be the Democratic primaries and conventions; and so F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, addressing the legal convention at St. Petersburg,

BEHIND THE SCREENS

Speaking of the Metropolitan and its incoming bill, it may be worth while to remember that "The Legion of the Condemned," opening Saturday at the F street house, is the first vehicle in which Paramount's newly formed team of romanticists is to be seen. Fay Wray and Gary Cooper are the players of whom Famous Players-Lasky think "owell that they have been dubbed "the glorious young lovers of the screen."

If memory serves at all correctly—and it probably doesn't—Cooper was last seen here in the title role of "Beau Sabreur," requel to "Beau Geste." "The Legion of the Condemned" is heralded as a much better piece of work than the desert story that served as a sequel to "Beau Geste" purely by virtue of advance publicity rather than merit.

The Department of Agriculture seems

The Department of Agriculture seems to have assumed rather a large responsibility for the week beginning Saturday. It has contracted to reproduce its recent amaryllis show on the stage of the Fox Theater as a special setting for one of Manager Stebbins' colorful spectacles enlisting the services of the Fox ballet corps and the symphony orchestra conducted by Leon Brusiloff.

Whitey Kaufman, conductor of the Victor Recording Orchestra bearing his name, and master of ceremonies at the Earle Theater, begins what is declared to be his final week at the Thirteenth street house day after tomorrow. Whitey has won many new friends during the six weeks that he will have served as major domo of the stage goings-on devised by Eddie Hyman for the delectation of patrons of the Earle. His orchestra is an excellent one and has comported itself in fine fashion throughout the engagement, which we Fans who are eager to see the new film faces of the future should look through the advertising sections of the popular magazines. Motion picture experience indicates that at least a few of them are doing their first emoting for the public there, in soap ads, coliar ads, camera ads and the like. The girl who is registering distress on page 394 over the caption "Oh, that corn!" may be registering distress in the movies a few years from now. And the smile that glistens in a toothpaste ad today may captivate millions of picture goers tomorrow.

After all, the principle is the same. A face that is attractive enough to sell tiself to an audience on the screen.

Eleanor Boardman did a lot to help pocket cameras become more popular before she entered the movies and made herself popular. Norman's greather of the craft produced by East Indians Theocast has the was a girl worth starring for her own sake.

Josephine Norman's fresh beauty helped to popularize a brand of soap that is supposed to make all women that way, and Kathryn Carver, though she did not appear in the advertising sections, was made into so many magarine covers that her face became a troop of the covers that her face became a troop of the producers the supposed to make all women that way, and Kathryn Carver, though she did not appear in the advertising sections, was made into so many magarine covers that her face became a troop of the producers of the fortunes in the films reads like the membership roll of a movie club. There seems to be some vindication of our enthusiasm over the film version of Maurine Watkins' clever travesty, "Chicago," in the announcement just communicated to us by Corbin Shield that this highly entertaining study of a beautiful blonde whom gentlemen did not prefer is to be held over for a second week at the Righto Theater.

did not prefer is to be held over for a second week at the Rialto Theater.

A wise decision on the part of Manager Steffy, if you should ask us—as you probably will not. "Chicago" is a far better picture than it was play, due largely to the fact that Amos Hart, the long-suffering young husband impersonated by Victor Varconi, the Pontius Pilate of "The King of Kings," has been made a human being instead of an unconscionable sap.

With the Metropolitan and Columbia both changing bills Saturday, after runs of "Old Ironsides" and "The Circus," respectively, the Rialto no doubt felt it incumbent upon it to perpetuate the theory that every week must witness a holdover somewhere among our firstrun cinema salons.

I think "Roberta" has misunderstood ray good intentions. In my previous possessed by both types, if girls would only make use of them to the fullest extent. The small woman can be said the wear youthful clothes with more appropriateness; the tail one may look older, but more distinguished. The small woman may have the quickers appeal; the tail woman more fascination. An almost endless list of comparisons could be made. And they would mean nothing, for it is the individual, even more than the classification by size, that determines how much of character, charm, chic, personality and beauty she has.

One thing is true about both the short and tail woman, and that is: she Kissing.

READERS, you have won my everal asting gratitude. I was in a hole and I needed the help of the ladies. You see, I promise to answer any question either in the column or personally (if hat indispensable stamped envelope is inclosed) on any subject which pertains to youth, except health, raised by any one who can hold a pencil and stick on a stamp.

But, believe me, my expert knowledge has its limitations. And when a young girl writes, "What can I do to keep boys from pestering me with kissing demands?" I can turn neither to experience or to library shelf. I find that all books and lecturers on "Problems of Youth" duck the really big things which trouble boys and girls.

I find the Rest.

"I would advise 'Perplexed' to look rather wistful and appeal to his manly strength of mind by saying in a dispointed voice. 'Oh, you're just like all the rest!' This may be changed with the next young aspirant to, 'I did think you were different!' This usually works beautifully."

"MARRIED."

These and two score of others I have quoted in my helplet (yours for the S A. S. E.) are from real experts and the interesting thing is they are nearly all married. Does that signify anything?

"But what silly stuff." I hear you asy. "Why shouldn't youth have they minds on serious things?" They do, and let's not forget it. But some of these serious things?" They do, and let's not forget it. But some of these serious things, like vocational guldance, how to study, &c., have the answers written down. Other things, trivial to oldsters who have drawn the shade against their youthful memories, are really mighty serious to youth.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

Y ESTERDAY the following problem was given: The contract is Spades; South is Declarer.

North is Dummy; the initial lead is shown. How should Declarer operate like two the Ace in Dummy; following which the Ace in Dummy; following which his twenty-six cards?

Declarer, planning his campaign, can see that he will not lose any trumps Declarer, planning his campaign, can see that he will not lose any trumps, or any Clubs, but he may lose to the two red Kings and he must lose Closed Hand's small Heart unless he can discard it. His only chance to obtain a discard is to establish Dummy's Diamonds and he therefore plans to do that if possible. He sees that he must be careful to win trick 1 in the Closed as an entry in Dummy. Then he plays as follows:

Trick 2, he will lead one of his trump honors from Closed Hand, taking with the Ace in Dummy; following which he will lead a small Diamond from Dummy to trick 3, finessing in the Closed Hand. If the finesse shou win, his plan would be to lead the Ace of Diamonds from Closed Hand (trick 4), then (trick 5) the Seven of Spades. putting Dummy in with the Nine, which would be followed by a third round of Diamonds (trick 6) which would be trumped in the Closed Hand If the adverse Diamonds fall, Declarer's scheme will have worked He can draw the adverse trumps it they are divided 3-3 or 4-2 (a 5-1 division is so improbable that it need not be considered), put Dummy in with the Queen of Clubs, and cash two Diamonds, discarding thereon the Queen and Siven of Hearts.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

GALLSTONES.

MAY be that we are on the road toward preventing gallstones. At least, we have something to fight over, and that is promising. The fields in which we make no progress are those quiet places where there is no discussion and controversy never disturbs the calm.

Among the contributing causes of gallatones are pregnancy and a life of physical indolence. In pregnancy the blood contains an excessive amount of a certain kind of fat. In diabetes this same fat is in excess in the blood. Why it does not cause gallatones as a complication is not known. Infections, particularly typhoid infection, are contributing factors.

The deck having been cleared, we are ready for the practical message to the man and woman on the street. Here it is:

Gallstones is one of the most preva-lent of all disorders.

It affects especially fat, indolent peo-ple 30 years old or over.

All adults should eat sparingly of fat meat, liver, fat fish, gravies, greasy dishes of all kinds, salad dressings, oils those quiet places where there is no discussion and controversy never disturbs the calm.

Dr. V. L. Schrager, speaking before the Chicago Medical Society, gave a basic diet for the prevention of galistones. He said the Japanese, Egyptians, Indians, and other races who live frugally and on a low fat diet are reasonably exempt from galistones. Before the World War two-thirds of the populations of the large cities in Germany had galistones. His authority is Kehr, a world-renowned specialist on galistones. The eating of excessive amounts of fats, ham, and sausage took a greater toll in Germany than the great war did.

Hurst says that 10 per cent of the adult population in England has galistones. Mentzer is quoted as saying the indications are that one out of every five adults in this country has that trouble. He found that nine-tenths of a group of adults, each weighing 220 pounds or over, had galistones. In a group weighing 110 pounds or less, less than one-third had the disorder.

All of this serves to tie up galistones with the habit of overeating, particularly of fat meat, gravy, all oils and oily dressing and butter. This applies to the diet of adults. It also ties up obesity with galistones, and the relationship between the habit of eating fats, oils, and greases and obesity is established.

SEVEN QUESTIONS FROM | one I do not care to marry asks me to marry him, what should I say?

A. V. M.

Thave just seven questions which I would like to have answered.

1. When your boy friend goes home in the evening, should the girt go with joy with him to the automobile in the yard?

I should think it quite unnecessary to ack more than you were sorry, but you couldn't marry him, and if he wanted to know why, say you didn't care for him in that way.

S. The other man I should like to ask me to be his wife, but he don't just seem to speak of it. How can I bring it to the point?

You wouldn't have to, if he wanted to marry you. He would manage that for himself. He probably likes you as a righthough they have known the boy as a neighbor or since childhood?

How can it be necessary to ask me that. What could you say except that you were sorry, but you couldn't care for him in that way.

S. The other man I should like to ask me to be his wife, but he don't just seem to speak of it. How can I bring it to the point?

You wouldn't have to, if he wanted to marry you. He would manage that for himself. He probably likes you as a righthough they have known the boy as a neighbor or since childhood?

How can it be necessary to introduce him when they already kt, w him? You introduce for the purpose of making a stranger known to your family or friends. Or you could introduce two strangers, whom you knew, to each other. You can't introduce people who do know each other.

What could you say except that you were sorry, but you couldn't care for him in that way.

S. The other man I should like to ask me to be him whe don't just seem to speak of it. How can I bring it to the point?

You wouldn't have to, if he wanted to marry you. He would manage that for himself. He probably likes you as a riengly don't know. I should think to marry you. He would hen were sorry, but you would be time enough. The expression "boy friend" is not in well-bred usage.

7. I read in a magazine that I could send a dime and get a book called "Secrets of Fascinating Womanhood." Do you think it would help me?

No. Such books are full of artificial nonsense

ducing your boy friend to your friends?
You would say to your parents, "Papa, r mama, I want to introduce Mr. Smith;" or "This is Mr. Smith:" unless you knew him well enough to say "John Smith." The same to your friends. This answers another question of what to call him. Mr Smith" or "John," according to your friends.

much of character, charm, chic, personality and beauty she has. One thing is true about both the short and tall woman, and that is; she must understand the requirements of line, fabric and accessories for height. Long, sweeping lines add to grace. The small girl must choose lines that flow from the shoulder to the hem uninterrupted along the way by any distinct horizontal effect—such as a belt that would make her appear shorter. The moderately tall woman may take full advantage of these slender long lines but, if her figure is good, she need not avoid belts or colors that contrast on horizontal lines, Again, if a woman is much taller than average, or too thin, she would do well to make note that horizontal lines break the apparent length of body. Some fabrics are much better suited to one type of figure than to another. For example, a stiff taffeta or slipper satin could be carried much more advantage-ously by the woman with height than by the small woman who would only seem to become shorter and somewhat dumpy by the "spread" of the material. Perhaps it is in the matter of choosing accessories that most women disclose how little they understand about what they may and may not wear. Little girls must never try to look "important." Their accessories as well as their clothes must be the essence of simplicity and should be bought to be in proportion with the figure as a whole. A large drooping MODISH MITZI

"Are you quite sure that jackets are going to be used so much, Mitzi?" asks Polly. Mitzi never argues. She seldom has logic but she always has proof. If Polly doubts her word or her judgment, they will go to the stores and she will point out to Polly her evidence.

There's the cardigan type of jacket that was first introduced by Chanel. It has stripes running across it. You can wear it for any sportsportswear styles. The neck is smart worn high.

It's one of those very necessary has large patch pockets. The separate jacket and coat are indispensable to wear over tennis dresses or two-piece jerseys.

"Just to show you, Polly, how popular jackets are for all time wear," says Mitzi, "here's my chiffon and lace frock. For afternoon wear it appears like this, for evening, the jacket with the long sleves is taken off." Polly's convinced about jackets—also that Mitzi knows her styles up and down and inside out.

I am the son of one who dreamed and schemed.

But I was auch a youngster then And couldn't read the eyes of men.

I only know he smiled on me And talked of times that were to be.

He'd feel my muscles, leg and arm As if for him they held a charm.

And I would laugh and romp and tease And ride away upon his knees.

I could not read the thoughts which he So bravely tried to hide from me.

Nor grasp the weight of all he told, For I was only 12 years old.

But now I understand and know I was his hope of long ago.

That counseling I laughed to hear Comes back today with meaning clear.

And now I wonder can it be That I'm the man he longed to see.

Five Federal Reserve Banks reported on conditions in their districts, and although they differ in many details, the consensus of their opinion seems to be that industry is undoubtedly recuperating, but at a somewhat slower pace than was expected. The latest car loadings figures showed a decrease from those of the corresponding week last year, but the difference was smaller than it has been in any of the last three weeks. According to the weekly steel trade reviews, the expansion in production has stopped, but there is ground for belief that brisk activity will be prolonged further into 1923 I than it was in 1927.

The tire and rubber shares suffered is on heavily as a result of the drop in crude prices to the lowest they have reached in several years. Closing quotations on the rubber excha ge were mearly 40 per cent below where they were on the first of the year.

Tire Company Securities Show Weakness After Break In Rubber Prices.

Prompt oversubscription was reported of the $15, Gelsenkirchen Mining Corporation (Germany), 6s, offered this morning. Extension to March 10 of the time limit for exchange of German state, and municipal mark bonds was announced. Federal Government obligations were West Faces Stubborn Competition for Outfield Position.

By FRANK H. YOUNG

(Staff Correspondent of The Post.) TAMPA, Fla., March 7.—With a real game booked for tomorrow, when the Nats journey to Avon Park to battle the Cardinals, the members of skipper Bucky Harris' crew are as pleased as a kid with a new toy. That bld saying that competition is the spice of life certainly rings true around a baseball camp. So far it has been all work and the prospect of a little play is looked upon by all of the Washington players as a pleasing one.

Manager Harris' idea of working both squads in the morning rather than bringing out his second group in the afternoon worked like a charm today and both sets of players worked strenuously in the most peppery drill of the present season. It was burning hot overhead, but there was a slight breeze blowing and several of the players showed rare form.

Because of Ill Health Babe Ganzel is hitting, for that center-field berth. Ganzel not only is showing more ground-covering ability than he did last season, but he is hitting everything dished up to him —and how. Barnes also is shaping up well and has shown himself to be a powerful hitter. West undoubtedly is a better fielder and thrower than either and he has better form at the tee, but form does not count when the swat averages are made up and Sammy must display results.

Salmon's Peter Snow Outruns Two-Year-Olds in Fourth.

Great Timber Scores in Romp in Fifth Over Bruno.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, March 7 (A.P.).—R. E. Carey's Carom won the third race and paid $102.20 for a $2 tleket in a form reversal today. Carom's recent efforts have been very much off color. Babe K. was second and Jubal Early third.

F. Horn, who had the mount on the favorite, Jubal Early, allowed his horse to drop many lengths out of it in the early part of the race and when he called on the gelding to run his handicap was too great. However, he closed samely. Carom led all the way and won in a drive by half a length. Babe K defeated Jubal Early two lengths forthe place.

W. J. Salmon, the New York sentis.

K. defeated Jubal Early two lengths for the place.
W. J. Salmon, the New York sports-man, had his colors carried to victory in the Thibodeaux purse, a 2-year-old event at a haif mile, when Peter Snow, a son of Peter Pan, led home a good field, stepping the distance in 0.48. Hain gained the place with Miss Mil-dred third.

Miss Mildred cut out a very fast early pace, but Peter Snow managed to stay close to the pace and in the final furiong responded to urging, closed gamely and got up to win by a nose. Ham held on long enough to save the place by a length and a half from the fast-tiring Miss Mildred.

R. T. Wilson won his second race of the meeting when his good colt, Great Timber, socred in a romp in winning the fifth race, a 6-furlong sprint. Bruno cut out a fast pace and for a level second it looked rather dubius for the backers of Great Timber as he was processed in the second, by three or four lengths back of the fifth ing leader. However, in the stretch Great Timber came with a rush, took the lead and won going away by two lengths. Bruno was second by four lengths from Aviator.

The Dearborn Stable's Sturdy Stella, which is trained by former Jockey Charley Gross, made a show of her high but has plenty of speed and may fool the fifth race, WILLIAM PENN, the most inconsistent performer in racing, can win.

and Sublime third.

Just before the horses went to the post a light shower fell, but it did not change the track conditions. Sturdy Stella ran the three-quarters in 1:13 4-5. Sublime made the pace for three furlongs, then Meyer, who had the mount, rushed Sturdy Stella to the front. She just galloped along and won by a length and a half. Forward Pass took place by a like distance over Sublime.

B. B. Rice's Southern Kiss, after 5. B. Rice's Southern Kiss, after several unsuccessful attempts to annex a purse, won today when she took the second event. Her margin of victory was very small and the result was in doubt until the official numbers were hung out. Bill seth was second and Vendeuse third.

There was much rough riding in this race. Going to the first turn it appeared as if several would go down, but all boys managed to keep their mounts on their feet. Mau Dale rushed to the front with Southern Kiss took the lead on the stretch turn and in a hard drive just lasted to win by a nose from Bill Seth with Vendeuse two lengths back.

In a head finish in the sixth Ramkin galned the purse over Escarra with Open Hand third. It was a hardfought battle all through the stretch and right at the end Ramkin got his nose in front to win. The 1½ miles was run in 2:08.

The final race was won by Patuxant by five lengths from Frank Andrews, who beat Georgia Rose a head for the place.

PIRST A COLLYER

OOD things. Four winners out of seven was not such a bad record at Jeff Park on Tuessen and they do say that Force lasted long enough to win. But they don't pay off after the official sign is hung up. For this afternoon sone hot tamales are acheduled to go over the plate and it is to be hoped that the crowd will not stage another rior if they happen to fancy that the placing of officials have had a bad night.

Right off the bat comes the real pickler. It is none other than J. J. BAMBRICK. Goes in the juvenile dash and with a decent break in racing luck will win pulled up. I cau't make it any stronger than that. There was some overnight commissions for FUSS and SHANTY McCARTHY, but that makes no never mind.

FOOTLOOSE is best of a bad bunch.

A FTER a careful survey of the candidates in the outdoor drills at the Hilltop during the past three afternoons. Coach Larry Kopf. former shortstop of the Cincinnati Reds and erstwhile big league player and manager, expressed himself as highly pleased with Georgetown's prospects on the diamond this season.

"They look fine," said Coach Kopf with no little optimism, as the 32 candidates, pitching, batting, chasing files or in a "pep league," went through their paces.

"Barring injuries we should have a great season. The team is well fortified in most every position and, judging by the ability he has shown during the few workouts we have had this week, Johnny Dunn will fill the gap at shortstop." Dun was the star of the Preshman nine last year.

Practice has been confined to batting drills during the week, but Coach Kopf plans to stage a practice game on Saturday, if the weather permits. Several of the players have come in for individual batting instruction, which concerned mostly their stance at the plate or other fundamental faults.

P.A. and a pipe-that's all lask

I DON'T mean that I am easily satisfied. As a matter of fact, I'm as critical as they come about smoking-tobacco. There are certain things I demand in a smoke, and I declare here and now that P.A. has 'em. Has 'em and to spare, if you ask me.

Fragrant as spring blossoms. Cool as "The boss wants to see you." Sweet as "I'm going to raise your pay." Mild and mellow and long-burning, with full satisfaction in every wonderful puff. It seems that there are not enough hours in a day to suit your Prince Albert program. You'll start in early and stay with it far into the night.

But all this conversation won't do you any good, uńless you try out the tobacco itself. When it comes to speaking for itself, P.A. is the best little talker you ever listened to. Go get yourself a tidy red tin and get some of this pipe-joy I've been picturing.

-no other tobacco is like it!

EASTERN AND TECH BASEBALL SQUADS AT WORK

Kelly to Call Central Out This Week

Western and Business Are Ready to Begin Practicing.

16 Mound Candidates Seek Jobs on Staff

By ARTHUR A. HEYWOOD. By ARTHUR A. HEYWOOD.

THE Eastern and Tech Baseball Teams have gotten the jump on the other high school nines, as both have been at outdoor practice the last two days. The champion Tech Team is training this year at the barracks, while at Eastern, Ouyon has only his battery candidates, but a horde of them, at that, at work. Coach Kelly, of Central, and Ahearn, of Western,
will have their squads out in a few days, while Woodworth, of Business, plans to call his candidates out Monday.

day,
Although the weather for the most Although the weather for the most part this week has not been the best for baseball, Eastern's pitchers, who are quite far advanced, took a long work-out. If numbers mean anything, Coach Guyon should feel clated, as sixteen pitching candidates were lined up on the Eastern field yesterday.

Andrew Ochmann, captain and reserve flinger last year, will probably be the mainstay of the staff this season. Ochmann is a right-hander. Among the other right-handers are E. Clark. Reeves, Hanna, Hoffman, Moffatt, Dillard, Faber and Curtin. The left-handers are L. Clark, C. Miles, Coiner, Mates, Rhine and Mueller.

Eastern has two capable receivers in Eastern has two capable receivers in James Munro and William Wood, both experienced men, although neither did much receiving last year, due to the fact that Kidwell worked regularly behind the plate. Other candidates for the job are Taylor, Schneider and Bryan. Lesinsky, second baseman, and Shapiro, left fielder, are the only other regulars available.

Max Schwartz, of the championship Max Schwartz, of the championship Auth Team of the Capital City League, home as a regular starter for Business. Schwartz is a capable young hurier who should do well in interhigh competi-tion. Beyond that the outlook for pitchers at Business is not bright, and Coach Woodworth will scan closely all available material, when his men re-port, Jakie Lewis will undoubtedly be the regular catcher, although Capt. Bernie Jones, originally a shortstop, can fill the position if necessity requires.

Between 15 and 20 candidates re-Between 15 and 20 candidates reported to Coach Ahearn at Western. Robert Wilson, all-high catcher hast year, is back, as is Eddie Bates, who showed nice form last year, although he was a reserve pitcher. Fletcher, formerly of st. Alban's, and Chance are showing well as twirlers. Western has a few gaps to fill, notably at shortstop, left vacant by the graduation of Bobby Fiveens.

Tech shows tight of again having a good mound staff, as Ensor and Young, both of last season, are back. Sorrell, regular catcher, and Brown, who was regular catcher, and Brown, who was denied the opportunity of catching last year because of incligibility, rounds out the battery staff. While Central has a good receiver in Captain Edmund Ault, pitchers are a problem. Garner and Brandt, sandlot heavers, look the most promising at the present. Central

35 Consecutive Bouts Refereed by Miller

What is believed to be a record for consecutive refereting of boxing bouts was established by Capt. Acting as third man in the ring and working right on through the finals and semifinals of the two series, Miller semifinals of the two series, Miller handled 35 consecutive contests. "The bouts were handled faultlessly

Interesting Animals IV. THE WALRUS.

The name of the walrus comes it somethimes reaches a length of 11 feet and has been well called "as big as an ox and as thick as a hogshead."

To call a walrus a whale-horse is putting the matter rather strongly; but it is a good-sized animal just the same.

When Experts Agree-Why Take Chances?

When laboratory tests are made by the manufacturers of quality receiving sets, RCA Radiotrons are used. When quality receiving sets are offered for sale, RCA Radiotrons are specified for initial equipment and for replacement. Why run the risk of faulty reception when you can equip your set with genuine RCA Radiotrons-the perfected product of the world's foremost radio engineers?

Head of a Walrus.

The tusks of a male walrus are a sight to behold. They are two great teeth which grow from the upper jaw and which are sometimes two and a half feet long.

What do you suppose the walrus does with his tusks? Yes, he uses them for nghting. During the mating season he is likely to battle with another male, and at any season he is ready to defend himself against a polar bear or a man—unless he can dive to safety.

When left alone at any time except the spring mating season, the walrus is a peaceful animal. He feeds largely on oysters which he digs up with his tusks, but will also accept worms or starfish or sea urchins. Indeed, he even likes to swallow pebbles. The pebbles can not supply food value, but I suppose they help in some manner in digestion.

The whiskers are another "sight to behold." Since they grow on the cheeks we may call them "aideburns." They give a rather brusque look to the old fellow.

Going to Montauk.

Going to Montauk.

Montauk Manor, Montauk, Long Island, is the piace selected for the coming annual convention of the District Bankers Association, according to unofficial announcement which emanated from the weekly forum dinner of the association yesterday. As the members of the Luncheon Club are known to direct the affairs of the association in matters which do not require the action of committees, it is safe to assume that the selection made will meet with the approval of the association when it meets to make the final decision.

Edward J. McQuade, vice president of the Liberty National Bank, who is chairman of the convention committee, has been busy for several months in gathering data on the available points, and with his well-known acumen as well as the judgment of his committee the choice of Montauk Point as the home of the next convention of the District Bankers Association is sure to meet with the approval of the entire membership.

Burbett Will Be Speaker.

A. R. Burbett, of Baltimore, representing the American Bankers Association in connection with auditing in the regional district combines in the territory in which Washington is included, will be the principal speaker at the luncheon which will be held today preceding the business meeting.

The subject of banking forms has been a matter in which the parent organization has played a conspicuous part over a period of years, but more recently the various subcommittees of the local organization have picked up the interest in the matter, and with the cooperation of the local bankers have in mind a perfection of a system of forms which will work to the benefit of all financial institutions concerned.

This matter was worked out last night, and with numerous important committees appointed it is expected that important announcement will soon be forthcoming.

New York. March 7 (A.P.).—Profit-taking sales changed the picture in the Feurly market today and prices which fup to noon were advancing became irregular. New high prices were fairly numerous especially among industrial specialties, public utilities and pipe lines, but the afternoon call upon buyers for the advance to absorb heavy estilling tended to reduce gains and in the case of some stocks caused losses on the day.

Chrysler Corporation

Completeness of facilities for produc-tion, in large part developed in the last five years, have made the Chrysier Cor-poration one of the leading manufac-turers of automobiles in the United States. It is credited with making in States. It is credited with making in its own plants an unusual percentage of parts used in its cars. In carrying out their policy of expansion, the managers have avoided any large funded debt, though spending nearly $1,000,000 in the development of the Chrysier car in one year. Financing since 1921 has been effected chiefly through ploughing in of earnings, the company having deferred dividends on the preferred stock until 1925 and on the common until 1926.

Conservative management has built

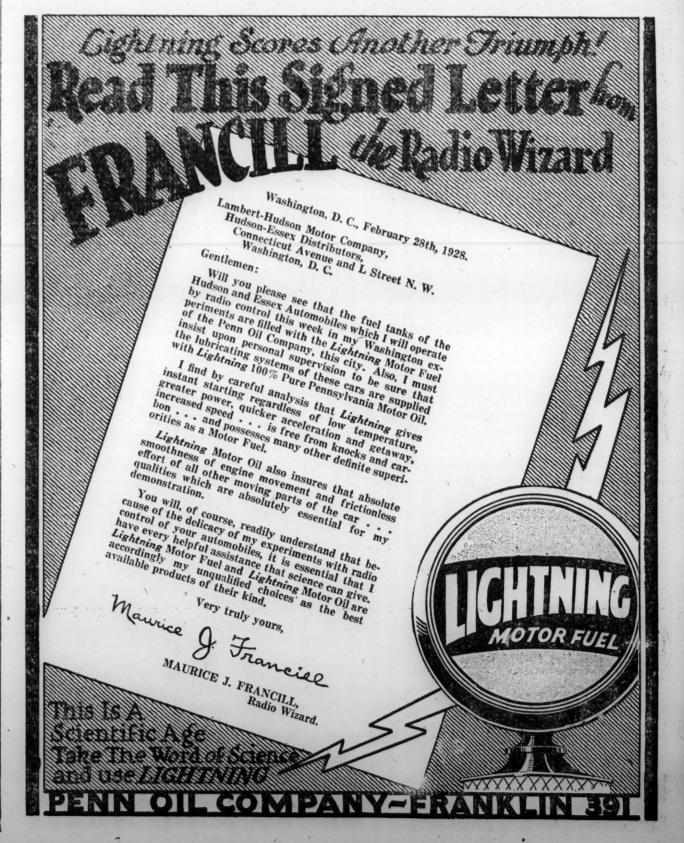

Conservative management has built up the financial position of this organization since 1921, the year of depression. A short term debt of 88,000,000 in 7 per cent debentures has been wiped out, and there remains but $1,081,000 of funded 5½ per cent debt. Indicated net working capital has been doubled in the same period, amounting on December 31, 1926, to more than $28,300,000.

Measure Goes Through by 319 to 12 After Schaefer Attempts to Block Action.

ZIHLMAN AMENDS IT, BARRING RAILROADS

Expenditure of $1,000,000 Provided; Backers Still Unknown to Moore.

The Moore bill authorizing private interests to build a $1,000.000 toll bridge across the Potomac River just below Great Falls was passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate. Representative Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin who had announced that he would do all in his power to defeat the till, demanded a rising vote defeat the till, demanded a rising vote In this, 112 voted for the bill and 12 against it. Schafer then demanded a roll-call vote. The result was 319 for,

As it was called up yesterday, the bill was without a clause providing that no railroad could use the bridge. Representative Denison (Republican), of Illinois, of the interstate commerce or illinois, or the interstate commerce committee, explained that such a clause was not necessary. There were two types of bills, he said, one for nill-road bridges and one for highway bridges. This bill, he said, was for a highway bridge, and there was no danger of a railroad using it.

At the hearings on the bill, Representative Moore explained that there was a great need for a bridge near Great Falls. Unless private interests were permitted to build a toll bridge, he said, it might be a long time before any span was put across the Potomac at that point. Neither Virginia nor Maryland, he said, had any intention of building a free bridge there.

The bill authorizes the Great Falls

The bill authorizes the Great Falls Bridge Co., to construct the bridge. The company is said to be made up of Washington, Virginia and Maryland business men. These men expect that about 600,000 automobiles would cross the bridge in a year. The amount that will be charged as a toll, however, has not been revealed.

The three bills reported out by the District were three that were favorably reported by the judiciary subcommittee several days ago. A bill introduced by Representative Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, providing for the payment to Police Inspector, Albert J. Possessed of a truly magnificent soprano voice. Mme. Jeritza knew well the art of exhibiting its beauties in many different phrases. The audience was delighted with a dazzling display of lyricism ranging from the sweet songs of American composers in English to impassioned arias by Massanet and Ponchielli.

As assisting artist, John Corigliano violiniest, came rightly into his share of the afternoon's enconiums. His tone coloring was of unusual variety and texture, combined with technical brillance and temperament. He opened his program with the lovely "Romance" from D. Minor Concerto by Wieniawski.

Mr. Corigliano followed it with a creditable performance of the Bach Kreisler "Prelude," a favorite with violin virtuosos.

German lieder sung with impeccable diction and rare tenderness next gave her the chance to bring out vocal and artistic attainments. At the close of this group, which included Schumann's "Widmung," she responded to an insistent demand for an encore.

"Ah, Love But a Day," by H. H. A. Beach, sung in English, proved another great hit of the afternoon. Her concluding aria, "Sulcidio," from La Gloconda, by Ponchielli, was also well received.

Mr. Corigliano was pleasing again in his final selections, "Spanish Dance." by Grandos-Kreisler, and "Caprice Basque," by Sarasate. The work of Emil Polak, pianist, as accompanist for both Mme. Jeritza and Mr. Corigliano, deserves its meed of praise, as well.
